PREFACE

This report presents statistics on the number of inhabitants of the State, its counties, and minor civil divisions (townships, etc.). In addition, separate figures are also presented for urban places, wards of cities of 5,000 or more, and other areas of the State. These data are based upon tabulations from the Seventeenth Decennial Census of the population of the United States, its Territories, and possessions conducted as of April 1, 1950. Provision for the Seventeenth Decennial Census was made in the act providing for the Fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses which was approved on June 18, 1929.

The major portion of the information compiled from the Census of Population of 1950 will appear in Volume I, Number of Inhabitants, and in Volume II, Characteristics of the Population. This report is a preprint of Chapter 47 (Washington) of Volume I, which is to present, in a single publication, statistics on the number of inhabitants for each State.

The materials presented here will also appear as Chapter A of Part 47 (Washington) of Volume II. Volume II will comprise a series of separately published parts, one for each State and a summary for the United States. The use of separate parts makes the basic materials on characteristics of the population for a given State available to the public in a single publication. Within the part for a State, Chapter A will recapitulate the statistics on the number and distribution of the population within a State; Chapter B will present statistics on the general characteristics of the population of the various political subdivisions of the State, such as counties, incorporated places, and the like; and Chapter C will present data on the detailed characteristics of the population of the larger areas within the State, such as cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more and standard metropolitan areas.

The materials presented here were prepared under the supervision of Howard G. Brunsman, Chief, Population and Housing Division, and Dr. Henry S. Shryock, Jr., Assistant Chief for Population Statistics, by Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, Chief, Demographic Statistics Section, and Charles P. Brinkman, Chief, Population Distribution Unit; the compilation of the statistics was under the direction of Robert B. Voight, Assistant Chief for Operations. The collection of the information on which these statistics are based was under the supervision of Lowell T. Galt, Chief, Field Division. The geographic work, including the delineation of special types of urban territory and the preparation of maps, was under the supervision of Clarence E. Batschelet, Chief, Geography Division.

WASHINGTON

Number of Inhabitants

The State.—Washington was organized as a Territory in 1853 from part of Oregon Territory, and included an area now comprising the States of Washington, northern Idaho, and part of Montana. In 1859, upon the admission of Oregon as a State, the remaining portion of Oregon Territory, comprising the rest of Idaho and parts of Montana and Wyoming, was added to the Territory of Washington. The area of the Territory was reduced to the present limits of the State in 1863, upon the organization of Idaho Territory. Washington was admitted to the Union in 1889 as the forty-second State. Its population on April 1, 1950, according to the Seventeenth Census, was 2,378,963. The State has a land area of 66,786 square miles. In 1950 there was an average of 35.6 inhabitants per square mile as compared with an average of 25.9 in 1940. Among the States, Washington ranked twenty-third in population and nineteenth in land area.

The area which later became the State of Washington had a population of 23,955 in 1870 (table 1). In 1950, 80 years later, the State had a population nearly 100 times as large. Population growth was rapid between 1870 and 1900, with the 1900 population of 518,103 more than 21 times the population in 1870. The rates of growth in the twentieth century ranged from 11.1 percent for the decade 1930 to 1940 to 120.4 percent for the decade 1900 to 1910. The largest numerical increase in the history of the State was recorded between 1940 and 1950. The numerical increase of 642,772 for the decade represented a gain of 37.0 percent over the 1,736,191 persons enumerated in 1940.

Usual place of residence.—According to usual Census practice, which dates back to 1790, each person enumerated in the 1950 Census was counted as an inhabitant of his usual place of residence or usual place of abode, which is generally construed to mean the place where he lives and sleeps most of the time. This place is not necessarily the same as his legal residence, voting residence, or domicile, although, in the vast majority of cases, these different bases of classification would be identical.

In the application of this rule, persons were not always counted as residents of the places in which they happened to be found by the census enumerators. Persons in places where guests usually pay for quarters (hotels, etc.) were enumerated on the night of April 11, and those whose usual place of residence was elsewhere were allocated to their homes. Visitors found staying in private homes, however, were not ordinarily interviewed there. Information on persons away from their usual place of residence was obtained from other members of their families, landladies, etc. If an entire family was expected to be away during the whole period of the enumeration, information on it was obtained from neighbors. A matching process was used to eliminate duplicate reports for persons who reported for themselves while away and were also reported by their families at home.

Persons in the armed forces quartered on military installations were enumerated as residents of the States, counties, and minor civil divisions in which their installations were located. Members of their families were enumerated where they actually resided. In the 1950 Census, college students living away from home were considered residents of the communities in which they were residing while attending college, rather than as persons temporarily absent from their parental homes as was the practice in 1940. In 1950 the crews of vessels of the American Merchant Marine in harbors of the United States were counted as part of the population of the ports in which their vessels were berthed on April 1, 1950. In 1940 such persons were treated as part of the population of the port from which the vessel operated. Inmates of institutions, who ordinarily live there for long periods of time, were counted as inhabitants of the place in which the institution was located; whereas patients in general hospitals, who ordinarily have short stays, were counted at, or allocated to, their homes. All persons without a usual place of residence were counted where they were enumerated.

Urban and rural population.—The 1950 urban population of Washington comprised 1,503,166 persons, or 63.2 percent of the population of the State (table 1). This population was living in the 66 urban places in the State and in other territory included in the urban-fringe areas of the three urbanized areas in the State and the Washington part of the urban fringe of the Portland, Oreg., Urbanized Area. Two-thirds of the urban population of the State was living in urbanized areas (table 2).

The rural population of Washington comprised 875,797 persons, or 36.8 percent of the population of the State (table 1). Of the rural population, 97,857 persons, or 11.2 percent, were living in the 51 incorporated places and the 12 unincorporated places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants (table 2).

Urban definition.—Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,¹ and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprises all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

According to the new urban definition, the 1950 urban population of Washington included the following components: (1) The 1,274,152 inhabitants of the 55 incorporated places of 2,500 or more; (2) the 56,883 inhabitants of the 11 specially delineated unincorporated places of 2,500 or more; and (3) 172,131 persons living in other territory included in the urban-fringe areas of Seattle, Spokane, and Tacoma and the Washington part of the urban fringe of Portland, Oreg. Since there were no places urban under special rule in Washington according to the old definition, the population of the first element comprised the population under the old definition. The population of the remaining elements—229,014—represents the gain in urban population due to the change in definition.

Although the Bureau of the Census has employed other definitions in the course of its history, the statistics on the population by urban and rural residence for the years 1850 to 1940 are shown in accordance with the 1940 definition. The 1950 statistics are shown in accordance with both the new and old definitions.

Trends of urban and rural population.—Trends in the urban and rural population can be examined only on the basis of the old definition. On this basis, the 1950 urban population of 1,274,152 was six times as large as the 1900 urban population of 211,477 (table 1). The largest numerical increase as well as the most rapid rate of growth in the urban population over the 50-year period came in the decade 1900 to 1910, when it increased by 394,053, or 186.3 percent. The increase between 1940 and 1950 of 352,183 was at the rate of 38.2 percent. All 20 cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more in the State shared in the increase in the urban population in the decade 1940 to 1950 (table 4). The rates of change in these cities ranged from 2.7 percent for Hoquiam to 426.9 percent for Kennewick. The one city of 50,000 or more in the State in 1900 accounted for 15.6 percent of the population of the State; by 1950 nearly one-third of the population of the State was living in the three cities of 50,000 or more (table 3). The proportion of the population of the State living in urban territory rose from 40.8 to 53.6 percent over the 50-year period.

The rural population of Washington more than tripled over the 50-year period, rising from 306,626 in 1900 to 1,104,811 in 1950 (table 1). The largest numerical gain in the rural population of the State was recorded between 1940 and 1950 when the rural population increased by 290,589, or 35.7 percent, over the 814,222 persons enumerated as living in rural territory in 1940. The proportion of the population of Washington living in rural territory declined from 59.2 to 46.4 percent over the 50-year period.

Counties.—The 39 counties in Washington ranged in size from Garfield with a population of 3,204 to King with a population of 732,992 (table 5). Between 1940 and 1950, 33 of the counties increased in population as against 34 in the previous decade. More than one-third of the population gain for the State was accounted for by King County, which had an increase of 228,012. The second and third most populous counties in the State—Pierce and Spokane—had gains in excess of 50,000. The population of Benton County more than quadrupled between 1940 and 1950.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are divided, the Bureau of the Census applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The minor civil divisions shown for the State of Washington in previous censuses were the election precincts, a few townships, and some of the cities and towns. The election precincts are unsatisfactory for statistical purposes, because their boundaries change so frequently as to make comparisons of data from one period to another impossible.

Accordingly, these minor civil divisions were replaced in the 1950 Census by census county divisions, which are newly established special areas which will remain as relatively permanent statistical areas comparable to the minor civil divisions in other States.

The census county divisions were defined by the State Census Board of Washington on the basis of criteria approved by the Bureau of the Census and were reviewed by interested State and local groups and by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture. The Bureau of the Census also reviewed and approved the divisions.

A total of 642 census county divisions was established in the State. Each incorporated place with a population of 2,500 or more, according to a 1948 estimate of the Washington State Census Board, was made a separate census county division; and each incorporated place of 10,000 inhabitants or more which was not divided into census tracts was divided into census county subdivisions. Census tracts are established in the cities of Seattle, Tacoma, and Spokane and in the adjacent areas of Seattle and Tacoma. Census tracts outside incorporated places of 10,000 inhabitants or more are recognized as census county divisions. For a description of the boundaries of the census county divisions and subdivisions, see pp. 47-21 to 47-39.

Table 6 shows statistics on the population of each county by census county divisions. The population of each incorporated place which is not a census county division and each unincorporated place is shown in italics under the population of the census county division in which it is located. When an incorporated or unincorporated place lies in two or more census county divisions, the population of the several parts is shown in table 6 under the appropriate census county division, and each part is designated by "part." Figures on the total population of such places are given in table 7. Unincorporated places are designated by "uninc." Changes between the 1940 Census and the 1950 Census in the boundaries of incorporated places are shown in notes to table 6. For changes in the boundaries of incorporated places and minor civil divisions prior to the 1940 Census, see reports of the Sixteenth Census, Population, Vol. I, pp. 1123-1133, and reports of earlier censuses.

Incorporated and unincorporated places.—There were 238 places incorporated as cities or towns in Washington in 1950 and 23 unincorporated places of 1,000 inhabitants or more. Of the 1,422,983 inhabitants of the incorporated places, 148,831 were in the 183 places of fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. There were 75,483 persons living in the 23 unincorporated places, 18,600 of whom were in the 12 places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants. The incorporated places ranged in size from Hatton town with a population of 42 to Seattle city with a population of 467,591.

Political units recognized as incorporated places in the 1950 Census are those which are incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages, with the exception that towns are not recognized as incorporated places in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin.

The Bureau of the Census has delineated boundaries for the thickly settled urban fringe around cities of 50,000 or more and has also delineated boundaries for unincorporated places of 1,000 or more which are densely settled population centers without corporate limits. Although there are unincorporated places within the urban fringe, it was not feasible to establish boundaries for such places and therefore they are not identified as separate places.

The count of urban places in the 1950 Census comprises all incorporated places of 2,500 or more regardless of location and unincorporated places of 2,500 or more which are located outside the urban-fringe areas. Incorporated places of less than 2,500 which lie in the urban fringe are not recognized as urban places.

Urbanized areas.—There were three urbanized areas entirely within Washington and another partly within the State. The Seattle, Spokane, and Tacoma Urbanized Areas had 621,509, 176,004, and 167,667 inhabitants, respectively. The Washington part of the Portland, Oreg., Urbanized Area had a population of 42,352. Of the 1,007,532 persons in the State living in urbanized areas, 772,985 were in the three central cities—Seattle, Spokane, and Tacoma—and 234,547 in the urban-fringe areas. The urban-fringe areas had 68,777 persons living in nine incorporated places and 165,770 in the unincorporated parts (tables 2 and 9).

Each urbanized area contains at least one city with 50,000 inhabitants or more in 1940 or according to a special census taken since 1940, and some urbanized areas contain two or more cities of 50,000. Each urbanized area also includes the surrounding closely settled incorporated places and unincorporated areas that meet the criteria listed in the section below on "Urban fringe." Thus, the territory of an urbanized area may be classified into incorporated parts and unincorporated parts. (See urbanized area maps.)

An urbanized area also may be divided into central city or cities and urban fringe as defined below.

Central cities.—Although an urbanized area may contain more than one city of 50,000 or more, not all cities of this size are necessarily central cities. The largest city of an area is always a central city. In addition, the second and third most populous cities in the area may qualify as central cities provided they have a population of at least one-third of that of the largest city in the area and a minimum of 25,000 inhabitants. The names of the individual urbanized areas indicate the central cities of the areas.

Urban fringe.—The urban fringe includes that part of the urbanized area which is outside the central city or cities. The following types of areas are embraced if they are contiguous to the central city or cities or if they are contiguous to any area already included in the urban fringe:

1. Incorporated places with 2,500 inhabitants or more in 1940 or at a subsequent special census conducted prior to 1950.
2. Incorporated places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants containing an area with a concentration of 100 dwelling units or more with a density in this concentration of 500 units or more per square mile. This density represents approximately 2,000 persons per square mile and normally is the minimum found associated with a closely spaced street pattern.
3. Unincorporated territory with at least 500 dwelling units per square mile.
4. Territory devoted to commercial, industrial, transportation, recreational, and other purposes functionally related to the central city.

Also included are outlying noncontiguous areas with the required dwelling unit density located within $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles of the main contiguous urbanized part, measured along the shortest connecting highway, and other outlying areas within one-half mile of such noncontiguous areas which meet the minimum residential density rule.

² Includes 172,131 persons in urban territory outside of urban places.

³ Population of Washington Territory; then included present States of Washington and Idaho and parts of present States of Montana and Wyoming.

⁴ Population of those parts of Oregon Territory taken to form part of Washington Territory in 1853 and 1859.

For description of census county divisions, see pp. 47-21 to 47-39. Figures for 1930 and 1940 not available for unincorporated places and places incorporated since April 1, 1940. Changes in the boundaries of incorporated places between 1940 and 1950 are given in footnotes; for boundary changes between 1930 and 1940, see reports of the 16th Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 1123-1133.
